What's new

We have two new members joining the Broughton Focus Team, making us a group of three members supporting your local community.

Nana Oguntola

Nana is an existing local councillor and the founder of a film and TV production company based right here in Milton Keynes. She's passionate about supporting local voices and making sure residents are heard.

Wing Tsang

Wing is bilingual and a Chartered Marketer with a passion for connecting communities. She enjoys motorsports, running, and spending time in nature, and brings creativity and communication expertise to the team.

Your local update

The Council has set aside money to investigate whether a third tip is needed to serve MK East & Newport Pagnell.

Thank you to everyone who has signed our petition on the proposed new rubbish "super-tips", neither of which is going to be located on the eastern side of the city. We've made some progress.

Northfield roundabout isn't getting any better. Recent repair work doesn't seem to have had any impact.

The A509 from Newport Pagnell will reopen by the end of August, and the promised upgrade has been postponed until most likely October. We're pressing the Council to realise how serious this now is.

BPHA will soon begin work on 33 new affordable flats in the area.

However, the planned community sports centre next to them is still expected to be "several years away."

New rules for postal and proxy voters

If you vote by post or proxy long-term, you'll now need to reapply with your National Insurance or passport number. For more information, contact us at: focusteam@live.co.uk or 07803 036 656.

Our actions

Sam is celebrating Paradigm's 449th and final home on Brooklands. With fewer than 100 homes left to build, the Brooklands development is nearly complete.

This was left behind Brooklands Square instead of in the bin store.

It's not allowed and can cause litter - so we've reported it.

The Council can't step in at Brooklands Health Centre as it's run by the NHS. But the Willen branch of Newport Pagnell Medical Centre is accepting Brooklands and Broughton residents.
